

A Red Shirt moves a load of bombs down the flight deck.

Bombs are hoisted into position beneath the aircraft by the Red Shirts.

A 750-pound bomb breaks loose and skids across the flight deck. Within seconds, the Red Shirts move out, bring it to a stop and disarm it.

Their official title is aviation ordnancemen. The pilots who fly air strikes over Vietnam call them, affectionately, "Red Shirts".

On the attack aircraft carriers serving with the U.S. Navy's Attack Carrier Strike Force 77 in the Gulf of Tonkin, these men have the awesome responsibility of arming each plane for its assigned mission.

To do this, varied armament and wing-racks are needed for varied targets. Working 12-18 hours per day, rising hours before the pilot briefing begins, these men change bomb racks with each flight. They trundle the ship's length with 250, 500, 750, 1,000 and 2,000 pound bombloads and somehow, every ninety minutes, have a fully-armed flight ready for launching.

With anywhere from 8 to 10 flights per day, the men are continually on the move. Every third night, with all flights in, the carrier will be resupplied from an ammunition ship. The Red Shirts are there, checking each piece of ordnance carefully before moving the pallets into position for easy accessibility when re-arming of the planes begins again.

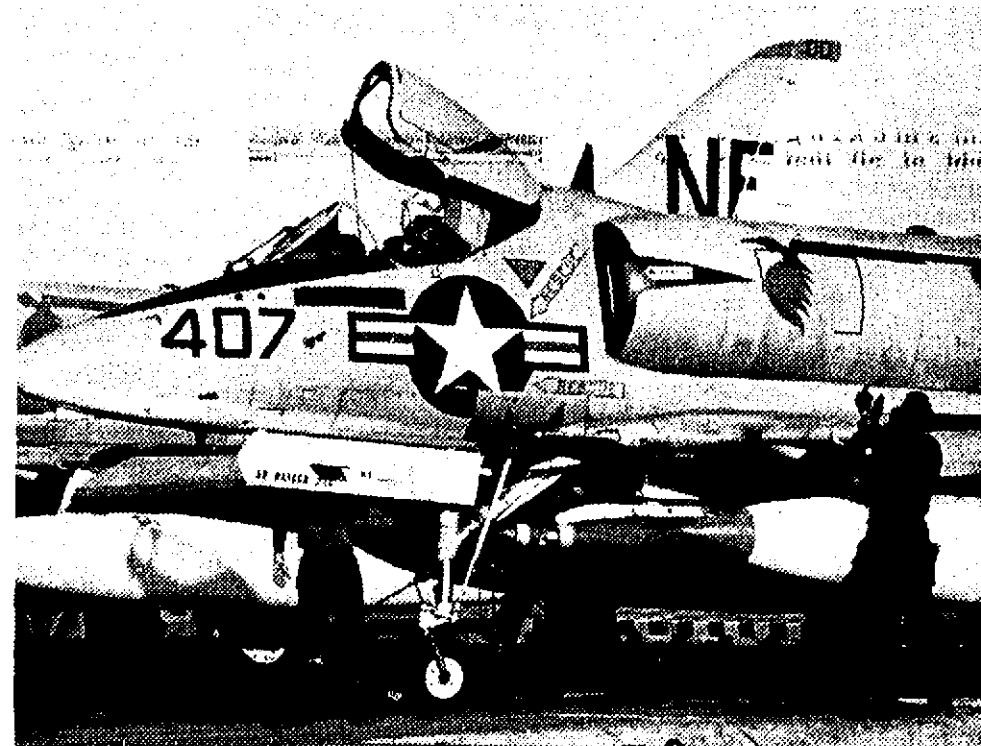

These Red Shirts live with danger each day, but their courage is automatic in the face of any emergency. During the recent U.S.S. Forrestal disaster, these men rushed into the inferno to rescue trapped pilots, kept fire hoses running, threw live bombs overboard and, below decks, fought through smoke-filled compartments to minimize any danger from above.

Red traditionally means danger, but the red a combat pilot sees moving about his plane, shown in these pictures aboard the U.S.S. Hancock, is something he knows as security: the security the Red Shirts deliver in their job as ordnancemen.

This Week's PICTURE SHOW—AP Newsfeatures.

Once the armament is in place, the delicate job of making each unit "live" is performed.

Lt. Cmdr. P. D. Barrish looks on as the ordnancemen give him the "Ready To Go" signal after final arming.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

Teens Go Up in Smoke: The latest word is that about 4,000 teens per minute take up smoking! All that despite really grim smoking stats. No doubt at all that they are cutting an ever-expanding life span appreciably. Psychiatrists have long talked about a "death wish." Now talk turns to teens' death wish—wonders whether cigarettes, marijuana and LSD are part of the same bag. Some seem to want to go faster than parents. Recent survey by "TEEN" magazine turned up mind-boggling facts about smoking and teens. One out of six claimed they smoked to some degree—average age 16. By and large, the smoking example of mom and dad made kids think it was O.K. Why do teens try that first drag? Mainly out of that old human curiosity. Oddest surprise finding of all? That many teens, despite what thundering headlines say of drugs, sex and general generation excesses, still consider smoking cigarettes a daring activity. Many do it because they know it's forbidden and harmful. More boys than you'd believe don't dig the smoking scene for girls at all.

War Babies' Cry in the Wilderness: No secret any more—teens do not make the best soldiers. Myth-breaking is a sweet sour by-product of war; so now we know through experience that 18- and 19-year-olds aren't all necessarily instant war machines. Majority of teens are buzzing about the possibility of a universal two-year national service program. In it, all U.S. teens would be required to serve their country for two years in some definite capacity aligned with individual aptitudes.

Commercial commercials: Certain commercials that might annoy you also seem to annoy beyond belief the majority of teens polled. They react loyally and affectionately to commercials they consider clever and informative.

Don't Kick Football: School athletics has come in for more than its share of censure in the last several years, now that brain makes more money than brawn and our urge to reach the moon before somebody else does emphasizes the cerebral. Truth to tell, as a Los Angeles sports show points out, football, for example, supports many school activities, makes plenty of money for colleges and universities. Supports quite literally the very professors who despise it most.

Hair-Raising Experience is O.K.: Latter Day Emancipation Proclamation? New Jersey State Board of Education rules that local schools cannot tell students how long to wear their hair.

Report Cards Fail: Increasing discontent over the value of report cards and present-day grading system expressed by more and more educators and school systems. Times are a changing. Just you wait and see.

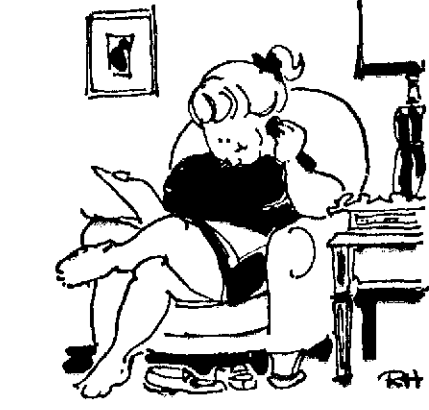

Hippie Talk: Average American teen doesn't dig hippie talk but prefers its own regional brand of cryptics. "Plastic," an adjective referring to the whole world of people outside the hippie's narrow sphere, so far absent from teen vocab.

Early Marriage-go-round: Over one-half of American girls are married by the age of 20!

Diet-tribe: Though more Americans than ever before in history are on a diet, the vast majority of teen-age girls are overweight.

Breeding Reading: Most girls between ages 12 and 18 chose a magazine of national interest over any other as subscription choice.

My Clothes, Says George Hamilton

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — George Hamilton, the handsome former boy friend of Lynn Bird Johnson, says he is embarrassed over police reports that coats found in his impounded car belonged to the President's daughter.

"Nothing in the car belonged to Miss Johnson," he said during an interview between rehearsals of musical "Funny Girl," in which he plays the husband of Fanny Brice.

"It had my clothes in it," he said.

Police in Kingman, Ariz., touched off the tempest when they found an expensive beige car, parked unlocked behind a restaurant.

At first, reports indicated that four milk coats were found in the car, along with several pieces of luggage with Hamilton's identification.

"Two of the overcoats are worn by me in the play, and they have fur on the only," Hamilton said.

HIGH JUMPER FASHION this fall means the pant-jumper (left) knitted of smooth, soft yarns by Natrice. It has a square neck, button front and co-ordinated striped turtleneck pullover. Racing stripes, circling waist, cuffs and turtleneck of husky-looking pullover (right) by Dell Knitwear is done in wide-track ribbing. These designs are knitted of a new type of Creslan acrylic fiber.

ANSWERS TO A "FLOWER CHILD"

Dear Helen: I was greatly amused by the 15-year-old "Flower Child (Hippie)" who was so determined to let you know how ignorant you were about drugs. She is the ignorant one. First of all, Flower People and Hippies are NOT the same, though a few characteristics are similar.

Flower Children are those who think love, flowers, nature and God are beautiful, but who appreciate them WITHOUT the use of drugs. In fact they are opposed to drug usage, which automatically distinguishes them from Hippies. Also, they recognize that though the war in Vietnam is wrong it is essential to see it through.

Hippies tune out of life with their drugs and dreaming. Flower Children reach out to life and want to make it better through involvement and love.

Please print this letter as a means of informing these frightened parents that there are plenty of us crazy, fun-loving, somewhat kooky teens who do not use drugs and will eventually grow up to be mature, loving adults. We do not want to be pushed into wearing shoes or deprived of wearing our hair or clothes differently, but we cannot be judged as Hippie turn-offs when we are actually Flower Children tune-ins. We will be able to handle the world when our time comes, maybe better than before, because we'll understand more about how people FEEL—and we'll really care!—A REAL FLOWER CHILD

Dear Flower Child: From all over the country I've had letters from you "Real Flower Children" and I think you're great! May your trive increase! —H

Dear Helen: I don't know which disturbs me more: people who condemn Hippies without knowing the scene, or the little 15-year-olds who claim love and dope are the answers to everything. I represent the former, but the latter frightens me. Tenne-boppers aren't old enough to know what they want out of life.

At 21, I am, and I've chosen for the Hippie life. I made the scene three years ago when we were called Beatniks, and the little kids stayed home where they belonged.

Let me tell these babies—it's a hard life. It's WORK, because if you don't work you starve, unless someone is kind enough to put you up and then you feel guilty about taking their bread. You need an education or skill. I go to U.C. at Berkeley and it's a struggle. Maybe you think being a Hippie is a big adventure, but the fun part now will be old stuff after a while. Being stared at intrigues you at first, makes you feel different and interesting, but sometimes you really have to stiffen yourself against disapproving eyes and whispered sneers. You ask—why have I hung on so long? It's the benefits: not material things, but the spiritual happiness. Whatever your bag is: liberalism, peace, or just living your life your way, you know you are contributing something toward bettering the world and you are fulfilling yourself. That makes up for the hardships. That's the beautiful part.

But, little kid, if you're not ready for it, don't try it, and if you're still in high school, you aren't ready! A lot of older people aren't either. It's hard to go back to conventional life once you've seen our side, even if you want to.

The foolish ones take too much drugs and dope. That's not groovy. Drugs don't help you to be creative. If just seems that way till you come down. You can have spiritual experiences without them. Did you ever get high just on happiness and joy of living? It sounds corny, but it's the best you'll ever get—better than LSD, which is dangerous! LSD alters chromosomes, can cause leukemia and mutations, so that your children may be born deformed. It can put you off your rocker permanently.

My friends and I are concerned about the kids. We don't want them. We Hippies can't communicate with the. Helen, tell them to please go home!—UCB Foster (Hondo), all 10;

Life In Arkansas

By TOMMY YATES
Associated Press Writer

The old gray mare was probably never what she used to be, but the old 1928 Willys-Overland Whippet that two Conway men bought soon will be.

W. A. Humphrey and George Hartley Jr. bought the collector's item recently from Paul Inman, who lives near Havana in Yell County.

The Whippet, which hadn't been started in 27 years, had its beginning when John North Willys bought the Overland plant in Indianapolis, Ind., and became president of the Willys-Overland Co.

A sleek automobile in its day, the Whippet still only has 17,000 miles on the speedometer, and will be good as new when its new owners get it hitting on all four cylinders again.

The Whippet's appearance is accented with an Arkansas license plate dated 1940, still attached to the back. The cloth interior, naturally faded and gray, is intact, but will be replaced.

The pull-down shade on the back window still works and the windows will roll up and down. The tires on the wooden-spoked wheels were no good, but the wooden running board will support a man's weight.

The Whippet's cloth top blew off when the men brought the car from Havana to Conway, but has been replaced.

To get the car running again, Humphrey told the Conway Log Cabin Democrat that he cleaned the carburetor and fuel lines, replaced the battery and condenser, filed the points, cleaned the spark plugs and removed clogged oil from the gasoline tank and radiator. The car started without trouble.

Old cars are hobbies of both Hartley and Humphrey. Hartley owns two Model "T" cars and Humphrey one, which he has painted bright red with black fenders and a white vinyl top.

"We get some double looks when we drive down the street in one of the old cars," said Mrs. Humphrey, but W. A. enjoys it. "He says they're the only things we've got that don't depreciate."

Anissa Jones

Manuel Padilla Jr. (Tarzan), 11; Ronny Howard (The Andy Griffith Show), Barry Livingston (My Three Sons) and Billy Mumy (Lost in Space), 13; Sajid Khan (Maya), 14; Angela Cartwright (Lost in Space), 15; Jay North (Maya) and Stanley Livingston (My Three Sons), 16.

Despite the fact that child actors have a reputation for being unbelievably spoiled brats, a lot of these children are normal in a situation far from normal.

Johnnie Whitaker's pretty mother, Thelma, says she had a talk with Johnnie before he began his acting career. "I told him that as long as he stayed the sweet boy he is, he could continue acting. But if there is any change, he will stop, and he knows it." Helping keep Johnnie normal—seven brothers and sisters at home.

The thing that all the youngsters seem to agree on is a dislike for crying scenes. Johnnie Whitaker says he "just thinks of something sad. One time Shirley Temple couldn't cry because it was such a happy day. So her mother told her something about Spotty, her dog, just before a scene. She told her that Spotty died, and Shirley cried. Then after the scene her mother told her Spotty didn't die—she just said that to make her cry."

Anissa, when asked how she makes herself cry, said, "I hate it. When it's a real happy day and then I have to do a scene where I have to cry, I have to think of something sad and then I think of it all day. I can't make real tears, you know. But I can make a crying sound."

Clint Howard, who may be the world's only 8-year-old stand-up comic, can move hardened adults to tears when he puckers up.

"When I have to cry," he says, "I don't really cry. Because when I go to school and we have time in the playground, everybody looks at me and says, 'Yah, yah, cry baby.'"

Clint and his brother Ronny, of CBS-TV's The Andy Griffith Show, are a great comedy act. Ronny is totally normal, and is a bit shy and sensitive. Clint is one of the world's great extroverts.

Conversations between the Howard boys sound like this:

Ronny: I played a tough boy in Gentle Ben.

Clint: I was a bad guy in Laredo.

Ronny: I'm not good enough to be a professional baseball player. I haven't really blossomed yet.

Clint: I'm good enough.

Ronny: He's Harmon Killebrew.

Clint: No. I'm Al Kaline.

Ronny: When we were in Florida, I saw Flipper.

Clint: No, that was his understudy.

Ronny: When I want to brag, I say I made my acting debut when I was two years old.

Clint: I was four, but mine was a close-up.

Both Ronny and Clint say they want to combine careers as actors and baseball players later in life.

Anissa Jones doesn't think she'll be an actress all her life. "I want to be an artist, a painting artist. I want to do billboard painting." When told that takes a long time, she said, "Yeah, I know, but I got a couple of years left."

Johnnie, who loves sports like "fishing, swimming, ski-

and Peck?" the tyke asked the producer. "Well, I'm 'Huckleberry Finn,' and a better."

On the other hand, Gerald Edwards, of ABC-TV's Cowboy in Africa was recently with a delicate mind. She asked how long he had wanted to be an actor. He thought a something to do with living on long time, then said, "Three Dock Road where traffic is months."

They still like their "druth-ers," too. Anissa Jones, who says her first name is that she'll become involved in "of a Lebanese princess, but the incredible welter of the her last name wasn't Jones," adult world in a few years. would, if she could do any- thing she wanted, "eat all the cherries in the world."

Johnnie Whitaker, like all boys worried that a girl might get ahead of him, wondered how many notes I had taken about Anissa while he was doing a scene. He was showed the notes and told that an equal amount would be written about him. That satisfied him until he had a sudden, terrible thought: "Suppose you run out of ink."

Smelling Success At Sweet 16

By JEFF COX
NEA Special Writer

NORWALK, Conn.—(NEA) —Ask the average 16-year-old girl how many copies her latest book has sold and you'll probably get a blank stare or an unprintable answer in reply. But ask Elissa Jane Karg and she'll tell you that the magic number is 3,000.

Her book, "How to Be a Nonconformist," has almost sold out its first printing of 3,000 and her publishers are ready to roll out another.

Is Miss Karg a world-wise belle of letters? A tortured housewife who has poured out her frustration on paper? A jet-setter lightly recapping in prose her adventures on the continent?

No, she's a soft-spoken 16-year-old senior at Brien McMahon High School in Norwalk. She has lived all her life on Dock Road in South Norwalk near the quiet waters of Long Island Sound. She's the daughter of an electronics engineer, and her mother is an interior designer.

And she draws. And writes. "I don't like people too terribly much," she says in her quiet way. "I like to be alone with my own thoughts. I like to sit in my room and think and draw or write." She keeps her hands folded in her lap. She's not an exuberant girl. Her time alone—to think—is much more important than cramming activities into every corner of every hour.

Her drawings—sprightly decorative things filled with flowers and small people, scalloped edgings and designs meant for fun—first paid off when she did a regular cartoon for her school newspaper called "The Nonconformist." Silvermine Publishers saw the cartoons and asked her to do a book. That's how "How to Be a Nonconformist" came about. It was just released Sept. 1.

The book is a rococo walk through the jungle of teen-age message and status. For instance, her text reads, in part: "The message of the nonconformist worries the Establishment. . . . Taking a 'trip' is an in thing to do, but if you're chicken, you can fake it by going to Timothy Leary's seances. . . . Playing in a band is cool. The more embittered and loud your songs are, the better. . . . Status is having the biggest cockroaches in your Village flat. . . ."

And she ends the book with this O'Henry-like switch: "I love babies, books, art and arguing. I hate anything that is middle-of-the-road, unconcerned, and noncommittal. I also hate—if you have not already guessed—everything that is cool and psychedelic and generally nonconforming."

About that last statement, she comments privately, "What I mean is, I don't like phonies. I believe people should protest-march and feel anger. But it has to come from a real commitment, not just to follow your friends." She's not against hippies: "I heard Timothy Leary speak on TV, and said to myself, 'He sees the same evils I do.' But I don't think escaping the world through drugs is the answer to those evils. You have to work through reality."

Elissa started drawing as soon as she could write. She's developed her decorative style "because I think that way." And she's consistent; her favorite painters are Matisse, Lautrec, Steinberg of The New Yorker, and Paul Klee, all masters of decorative painting.

Surprisingly for someone 16, she doesn't like rock at all. "It's too jerky," she says. "I like things that are slow and sensitive, Buffy Ste. Marie and her angry Indian songs, for instance."

Elissa spent last summer studying art at the University of the Americas in Mexico City. "It meant a lot to me—when I came back; the contrast between Mexico and the United States was overwhelming. You can't imagine how awful it is to live next to the United States when you're as impoverished and . . . well, uncivilized almost . . . as the people who live in the back country of Mexico."

And after her senior year at Brien McMahon High is finished in June, is it on to an art school?

"No, I don't want to go to an art school. I'm going somewhere—I don't know where yet—to major in English. I love to read and write best of all. And I've had some wonderful English teachers." For favorite books, she says, "The Little Prince," "Huckleberry Finn," and a Spanish book called "Platero and I."

Elissa Karg is a quiet girl boy in Africa was recently with a delicate mind. She asked how long he had wanted to be an actor. He thought a something to do with living on long time, then said, "Three Dock Road where traffic is months."

ing, hunting and sea shell finding," thinks he'll stay an actor.

Some children are born actors. Like Sajid Khan of NBC-TV's Maya, at 14, a star in India. He was a waif of four wandering the streets when he was spotted by film director Mehboob Khan (who later adopted the boy and gave him his name), looking for a child for his film "Mother India." He asked Sajid if he thought he could act. "Do you know Gable

FAITH OPENS NEW HORIZONS WHEN YOU OPEN THE CHURCH DOOR

now unto you

... little minds, I speak with whatever wisdom age has to offer. But Paul more wisely said it, "Though I speak with the tongues of angels, and have not Charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." The wise lady offers good council but youth, it seems, must learn by experience, by precept, by example. That makes it all the more important for adult life to give its best to the basic needs of our youth. Keep good books before them; let your word of mouth be clean; make church attendance and Christian living a 'must' at your house, for, Charity must begin at home. And truly, we are as nothing without Charity. Then come with me to church, let us abide in the will of God, obey His voice and march to victory.

Come let us go into the House of the Lord

You In The Church
The Church in You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs
the influence of the church. So, come let us

WIN AT BRIDGE

South's opening call of four hearts is not recommended.
We favor opening this type of hand with one heart only.
Sometimes this lets your opponents get into successful competition but there are many more times when a four heart bid gets you too high or keeps you from getting to a slam.

This time four hearts should have worked like a charm in spite of North being void of the suit.

West opened the king of diamonds. South took his ace and proceeded to cash dummy's three top spades in order to discard his deuce of diamonds. Then he ruffed a diamond to get back to his hand and played his king of hearts.

East won with the ace and led the three of clubs to his partner's king. West returned the ten and East was in again.

East played his ten of spades and South had no way to keep West from making his ten of trumps. If he ruffed low West would cash it immediately. If he ruffed high West would make it later on.

"Beautiful defense!" said
West. "You timed everything exactly right."

We agree with West's analysis of the defense. East had to lead the low club when he did, West had to return a club and East had to lead his fourth spade exactly when he did lead it.

We don't agree with South's play of the hand. He started out correctly by cashing dummy's three high spades and discarding his losing diamond.
His next play was where he went wrong. Instead of ruffing a diamond he should have led dummy's last spade. Then, when East played the ten
South would discard a club.
Dropping the first club on the losing spade would have forestalled the eventual establishment of West's ten of trumps as a winner.

again. After all, you have carried him to game, even though he has shown a minimum hand.

Leopards In 27 to 0 Win Over Bobcats

BY RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sportswriter

Matched against one of the strongest high school teams in the state the Hope Bobcats fell to the Malvern Leopards 27-0 last night at Malvern.

The Bobcats trailed 7-0 at the half, but Malvern's passing attack was unstoppable through out the second half. The Leopards just turned out to be too much for the Bobcats.

Hope is now 2-3 overall, with a conference mark of 1-2. Malvern is now 3-1-1 for the season, 2-0-1 in conference. A conclusive report on the game will be given Monday.

Curley Wolves Take Lakeside In 20-6 Win

HOT SPRINGS — Fullback Jones scored twice to lead Prescott to a 20-6 victory over Hot Springs Lakeside here Friday night.

Jones scored twice on plunges through the middle. Wright kicked two extra points.

Prescott quarterback Greer scored the final TD on a 44-yard end sweep.

Reese set up Lakeside's touchdown on a 91-yard run and scored moments later.

Explanation for Lions Is Simple

By WHITEY SAWYER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Mike Luceli has a simple explanation for the new-found success of the Detroit Lions.

"We're just playing a lot better," said the middle linebacker.

The defense was the National Football League Lions' strong suit for years, but this year the offense, sparked by the running of rookie Mel Farr, has grabbed the attention.

The Lions tied the world champion Green Bay Packers 17-17 in their season opener, then crushed Cleveland 31-14 Sunday.

Luceli thinks the defense is better, too, and gives a lot of credit to new coach Joe Schmidt and defensive coach Jim David.

"We've got a couple of new defenses which gives us something to go to in case we're getting hurt," he said, "and that's something we didn't have before."

Schmidt was the middle linebacker for the Lions for 13 years, but when he retired last year and became an assistant coach Luceli took over the job.

He filled in capably, intercepting five passes last year. The 27-year-old athlete stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 235 pounds.

There have been a lot of changes in the Lion defense this year, but Luceli thinks they've helped. Lem Barney, a rookie, moved in at cornerback. Jerry Rush took over at tackle when veteran Roger Brown was traded.

Washington's Letter Costly

NEW YORK (AP) — A letter written by George Washington has been sold for $25,000—a sum equal to the annual salary Washington earned as the nation's first president.

The four-page letter was written in Philadelphia on July 21, 1793 to the governor of Virginia, Gen. Henry "Light Horse" Lee, an old comrade of Washington's.

In it he discussed his concept of the presidency and its critics, noting particularly the "arrows of malevolence" aimed at himself by various "discontented characters."

The letter was sold at auction Thursday by Charles Hamilton Autographs, Inc., to a Philadelphia bookshop, Charles Sessler, Inc.

Flower Bed Was Going to Pot

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The flower bed outside Salt Lake City Hall was going to pot, city officials discovered Thursday.

A team of rather grim reapers—headed by Mayor J. Bracken Lee—dourly supervised removal of three marijuana plants from amid the city's well-groomed blossom patch and Police Capt. J. L. Smith said the pot would be replanted in pots by police lab men "to see how long it will grow."

Largest of the marijuana plants was two feet high.

Smith said the city parks department planted the garden. He theorized someone else tossed the pot in later.

Puzzled by the Cardboard Box

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

Sheriff's deputies were puzzled Thursday when a man carried a cardboard box to his arraignment on charges of trying to extort $50 from a judge.

Investigating the deputies said they found it contained law books apparently stolen from another judge's chambers. Before the prisoner, Phillip Crowley, 25, left the court, he had new charges against him—burglary and larceny.

Vince Needs a Crew

Clint Murchison has brought a novelty to the playing of the national anthem in the Cotton Bowl before Dallas Cowboy home games. Instead of a full band, he hired Tommy Loy, a trumpet player for the Dallas Symphony, to do it solo. The price was three season tickets (Tommy's a confirmed Cowboy fan) and the promise that if the Cowboys get official blazers, he'll also be fitted for one.

Here's what the heat on a Sunday can do to one man. After 60 official minutes of action against the Giants, Cowboy fullback Don Perkins went from 203 to 191, a loss of 12 pounds.

Vince Costello, the "new" 35-year-old quarterback of the Giant defense, as the middle linebacker, could do for that unit what Y. A. Tittle, another salvage job in New York, once did for the offense—if they surround Vince with any kind of help. But 10 years with the Browns etched a deep association for Costello. Before leaving Cleveland, he made a pact with Paul Wiggins, the defensive end and his old roommate, that they'd call each other every Saturday night during the season—Paul calls one week, Vince the other.

Another old-timer, Doug Atkins of the New Orleans Saints, daddy of all defensive ends at the age of 37, is singled out by quarterback Fran Tarkenton as the man who has consistently hit him the hardest during his pro career.

Besides saving on sandwich costs, former PGA champ Al Geiberger's tie-in with a peanut butter manufacturer has spared him a golf expense. Skippy's, his sponsor, supplies him with specially engraved tees that Al totes around in all his pockets.

Don January, current PGA champ, claims there are so many good kids on the golf tour now (after all, Nicklaus is still a kid) because they have much more competition in their younger stages, from high school through college, than the older pros had. "It's straight play for six or seven years," he says, "so they're old veterans in tournament play by the time they turn pro. But it also makes us old guys work a little harder, practice a little more, try a little harder. The edge we have on them is in our experience."

On the same youth kick, manager Cal Ermer of the Minnesota Twins claims that the kids in baseball are just as good as ever, even with fewer minor leagues as training grounds. "The cream comes to the top quicker," he says. "A kid isn't buried for years, like some of the old Yankee talent."

Cornell Green, the all-pro cornerback of the Dallas Cowboys, defies an edict prevalent on all pro teams that all ankles must be taped. The former Utah State basketball star doesn't like his ankles fettered by adhesive and generally ignores the rule. Recently, he has broken down and let himself be taped for an exhibition game. That day he sprained his ankle.

They can't say Mike Phipps, the sophomore quarterback who succeeded All-American Bob Griese at Purdue, is bashful. He threw 30 passes in the first half alone of his varsity debut against Texas A&M.

Between you'n'me, they're booming Mo Moorman strongly for All-American honors as an offensive guard at Texas A&M, but he's no better than another lineman on the same team. Rolf Krueger, who plays the other guard and, like Mo, doubles on defense in key situations. Rolf's the younger brother of 49er tackle stalwart Charley Krueger.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Success Has Gone to His Waistline

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Bert Yancey's success on the pro golf tour this year hasn't gone to the quiet ex-cadet's head—but it has put some bulges in his waistline.

"I've put on about 12 pounds since the Masters," Yancey said before starting his bid today in the first annual Atlanta Classic Golf Tournament.

"That's one of the reasons it takes so long to be a good golfer on the tour," added the 29-year-old winner of the Dallas Open this year who finished third in the Masters. "It takes about five years to learn how to control your temper, to think, to sleep—and to eat."

"I've got to quit eating potatoes and bread and sweets, that's all there is to it," said the one-time cadet at the U.S. Military Academy who has pocketed $59,004 this year in his pro season. "This weight is bad for me, but I can't seem to keep it off."

Buffs Have No Points, Two Holes

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Buffalo Bills came out of their game against the Boston Patriots with no points and two holes — one in their offensive attack and another in a partition in one of their locker rooms.

The Patriots' defensive front four was responsible for the first hole, and one of the four, Larry Eisenhauer, takes credit for the second.

Actually the second hole came first, and it prepared Eisenhauer for a job that:

1. Helped make the other hole possible, and
2. Earned for him The Associated Press' selection as the American Football League's Defensive Player of the Week.

The honor just as easily could have gone to Boston's front four as a whole because Eisenhauer, Bob Dee, Jim Hunt and Houston Antwine comprised the focal point of a defense that accomplished a feat never attained before — it shut out the Bills 23-0 last Sunday.

No team ever had been able to do that in 141 previous tries, and the Bills have that locker room hole to remind them of the first time it happened.

"I'm know for being a very emotional player," said Eisenhauer, a 6-foot, 250-pound end, "before a game I slam lockers, run into walls, belt my teammates, which they're not too happy about — anything I can do to get myself emotionally high."

"When I run into walls I try to break them. The locker room at Buffalo is sort of small, and I can't do as much damage because there's not enough room to get up a lot of speed."

"But I still put a hole about the size of my helmet in a partition."

How does the hole happen to be the size of his helmet? "I hit the partition with my helmet," Eisenhauer admitted. Once the seven-year veteran is finished with his pre-game exercises, he carries his football form of mayhem to the field. His playing philosophy is simple.

"A defensive end has to stop the run," he explained, "but his age as I can. You put a lot of primary responsibility to physical pressure on a passer, work as hard as I can to get free, and when I get free I unload a shot, everything I have, at him."

"It's usually from the blind side so they don't see me coming I try and do as much damage as I can. You put a lot of primary responsibility to physical pressure on a passer, work as hard as I can to get free, and when I get free I unload a shot, everything I have, at him."

"You give him some good shots, and he starts worrying about you coming in again."

Big League Players Select All-Star Team

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The naming of the most valuable players in baseball is a simple formality. Just fill in the names—Carl Yastrzemski for the American League, Orlando Cepeda for the National League.

Their peers, the players on the 20 teams in the major leagues, beat everybody to the punch when they voted overwhelmingly for the two sluggers in a special poll conducted by Newspaper Enterprise Association to choose the first annual All-Players All-Star Baseball Team.

Yastrzemski, gaining a position in the outfield, outdistanced every player in the game with a total of 326 ballots. Cepeda, with minimal competition at first base, was second at 317.

Roberto Clemente, the rifle-armed Pittsburgh Pirate right-fielder who is gunning for his eighth consecutive .300 season and his fourth National League batting title, was an impressive third in the tally with 291 votes, followed by outfielder Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, with 245.

The rest of this star-studded lineup finds Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh at second base, Jim Fregosi of the California Angels at shortstop, Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs at third base, Tim McCarver of the St. Louis Cardinals behind the plate, Jim Lonborg of the Boston Red Sox as the starting pitcher and Ted Abernathy of the Cincinnati Reds as the relief specialist.

A testimonial and review of the team will be presented by Sandy Koufax in his pregame show preceding the nationally televised game of the week between the Minnesota Twins and the Boston Red Sox on the NBC television network Sept. 30.

Yastrzemski and Lonborg of the Red Sox will be Sandy's special guests to receive their awards designating them as the finest at their positions in baseball.

In the voting for NEA and (name your paper), the players crossed league boundaries to select the 10 finest men in the game, with the single stipulation that they could not vote for men on their own teams.

The honors went to seven National Leaguers and three from the American League. The closest contest involved shortstop Jim Fregosi of the Angels and Gene Alley of the Pirates, with the American Leaguer squeezing through by a five-vote margin, 171-166. The catchers also had a close run, with McCarver, a key figure in the rush of the Cardinals to the National League pennant, outlasting Joe Torre of the Braves.

If there was a surprise among the honorees, it has to be Ted Abernathy of the Reds as the relief specialist. Abernathy, the only man on the Reds older than his manager, Dave Bristol, was rescued from the reject pile when Cincinnati drafted him off the Richmond roster last November. In 1965, he had set an all-time major league record by appearing in 84 games for the Chicago Cubs.

The 34-year-old reliever, lone submarine-style thrower in the majors, hasn't been as spectacularly cast this year as relievers on pennant contenders—like Hoyt Wilhelm of the Chicago White Sox and John Wyatt of the Red Sox—but more than 25 saves and a stingy earned run average earned him the players' tribute over Wilhelm.

Also basking in universal acceptance for the first time as the best at their positions are Santo, the sparkplug of the surprising Cubs; McCarver, who has always been in Torre's shadow; Fregosi, finally living up to his potential, and Lonborg, who acquired control almost overnight and became a 20-game winner.

But the key factors of the 1967 baseball season have been the tremendous resurgences of Yastrzemski and Cepeda as the dominant figures in their leagues. They are currently the most dangerous hitters in their game. They are also the inspirational leaders of their teams, although both had been accused in the past of being selfish ballplayers.

The extent of their contributions is in direct proportion to the plaudits they've received on this first annual All-Player All-Star team, chosen by the toughest electorate in sports.

Question Is Who Will Cut Spending? Figures in This Life Everybody Has to Play a Game Regardless

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP) — A partisan battle for political advantage seems sure to end up in a sharply pruned federal spending program. But still at issue is who will wield the shears.

Congress will probably decide next week whether to take the initiative in budget-cutting or hand President Johnson a "do-it-yourself" directive.

The stakes are highly political—neither party wants to be blamed for slashing programs popular with the public. But some congressmen say spending must drop before they'll vote for Johnson's proposed income tax hike.

The maneuvering also involves the future paychecks of thousands of government workers in a score of agencies. Their money is tied up in a controversial temporary appropriation measure that would tide them over until Oct. 10.

The affected agencies have been financed temporarily since the new fiscal year started July 1 with their normal annual money bills still in the legislative machinery. Their current money ration runs out at midnight Saturday but they will continue operating on faith that eventually the bills will be paid.

No payless paydays are anticipated by Treasury officials until mid-October and they hope the problem will be resolved by then.

There's no problem next week, they added, because employees will be paid from September funds for work done in September. Virtually everyone paid the following week will fall into the same category.

Technically it will be illegal for many government employees to make a telephone call or take a taxi on business Monday since they would be obligating the government to pay the bill Congress hasn't authorized.

But one official said "common sense, prudence and blind faith will prevail." Government as it has in similar situations before, will continue to operate, he said.

The House Appropriations Committee tried to get unanimous consent Thursday for passage of the 10-day financing bill after the House earlier rejected a 30-day plan because it couldn't consider a Republican alternative.

Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, top Republican on the committee, objected to immediate action Thursday because the parliamentary situation wouldn't permit consideration of his alternative proposal.

Bow and all 168 Republicans on record want to add to the bill a directive to the President to cut $5 billion from government spending this year, with the President deciding where to cut.

Democratic Leader Carl Albert told the House the Republican proposal was a "surrender" to the President of congressional authority. He said the Appropriations Committee has started a review of appropriations already made or pending.

Will Answer 55 Questions

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Life is a collector's game. Everybody has to play the game, whether he wants to or not. The problem is—what to collect? Shall it be stamps or dolls, wounds or portraits of old windmills, bruises or money?

There are hundreds of choices. So many, many things to collect. But there is one thing you can't go through this world without collecting—memories. And nothing else man collects is so precious to him.

Your own collection is pretty extensive if you can look back and remember when—

Airplane hostesses had so little to do they spent most of their time sitting in the seats and talking to the passengers.

A minister was more interested in getting the members of his congregation into heaven than in solving their problems on earth.

Ice skates had wooden runners instead of steel blades. There was more nepotism in Hollywood than in Congress.

It was more fashionable for women to wear silver fox furs than mink.

One of the problems of motoring was putting up the car's isinglass and fabric curtains when the weather turned cold. A heater for automobiles? It was only an inventor's madcap dream.

George Ade made the nation laugh by remarking that one of the nice things about wearing white shoes was that they didn't show frost.

Conservatives were more fearful of Socialists than Communists because most of them, after all, hadn't ever seen a real live Communist.

The idol of childhood was the brawny neighborhood iceman, who drove a horse and wagon and always had a small chip of free ice for any kid—even if the kid was too shy to ask for one.

Only wealthy people belonged to country clubs and played golf.

It was taken for granted in most families that a farmer's sons would grow up to be farmers and a blacksmith's sons would become blacksmiths.

In every small town you could see a local character who wore a wooden leg he had whittled or a local character who wore a wooden leg he had whittled.

Children and Negroes were supposed to be seen, not heard—to know their place and stay in it.

Any schoolmarm caught smoking in public could kiss her job goodbye.

There were still so many Civil War veterans around that they looked down their noses at the Spanish-American war veterans as young upstarts.

When the doctor made a home call, he was never so busy he couldn't pause for a cup of coffee in the kitchen, take the small children on his knee, and awe them by letting them listen to their own heart beat through his stethoscope.

Come to think of it, almost everybody had more time to be courteous and kind and pleasant to one another then. They weren't so saddled by all kinds of urgencies.

Those were the days! Remember?

Three Military Officers Are Shot to Death

JAKARTA (AP) — A firing squad has shot three military officers in the first executions resulting from convictions following the 1965 Communist coup attempt, military sources said today.

Among the officers was Lt. Col. Untung, a palace guard who marked the beginning of the coup attempt by broadcasting the coup to the public.

The coup attempt was the administration has made in seeking some accord with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

The GOP leader said he would support a halt in bombing—but only if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong scaled down their military activities.

'Mean' City Asks Damages
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Education Department received a bill Thursday from the city of Mean for cost incurred during a fire training course conducted there this summer.

It seems that an instructor of a training course crashed through the fire station doors while behind the wheel of a fire truck.

The bill was $300.33 for repairs to the truck and $249 to replace the doors.

Hanoi Gives Brushoff To LBJ's Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's latest enunciation of his Vietnam policy drew an apparent advance brushoff from Hanoi and mixed comment from Congress.

Even before the President spoke Friday night, offering to halt U.S. bombing of North Vietnam in return for prompt, "productive discussions," a high-ranking North Vietnamese official appeared to be turning thumbs down to such a proposal.

Vice Premier Le Thanh Nghi said in Peking that the United States "must unconditionally halt its bombing and other war acts against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam once and for all," withdraw its forces from South Vietnam and recognize the Viet Cong as "the sole genuine representative of the people of South Vietnam."

Nghi's speech, reported by the New China News Agency and monitored in Tokyo, clashed specifically with Johnson's later assertion in his San Antonio, Tex., speech that the United States would "assume" that during any bombing halt the North Vietnamese would reciprocate by a military slowdown.

Congressional backers of the President's war policies applauded his speech while opponents rapped it.

And House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, hinting at an issue the GOP is expected to hit hard should Johnson seek reelection, appeared unconvinced the President spoke the whole truth.

Speaking to newsmen in Lancaster, Ohio, where he was attending a testimonial, Ford said he hoped Johnson was telling the public "the absolute truth about the many efforts the administration has made in seeking some accord with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong."

The GOP leader said he would support a halt in bombing—but only if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong scaled down their military activities.

Hand Grenade Injures Four At Lone Star
TEXARKANA (AP) — A hand grenade exploded on the production line at the Lone Star Army Arsenal Friday, sending four persons to a hospital.

Lt. Col. Duane Harris, commanding officer, said seven persons were working in the vicinity of the blast. He said damage to the plant was "very minor" and that production continued.

Taken to Wadley Hospital at Texarkana were Charles Elkins, William Maddox, 19, and Mrs. Jimmy Lancaster, all of Texarkana, and Floyd Blankenship of Naples, Tex., Maddox and Blankenship suffered serious injuries.

The grenade blew up shortly after 10:30 a.m. The plant is in Texas about 10 miles west of Texarkana.

Colonel Harris said an investigation had been started.

In February, a 105 mm. shell exploded in a building at the plant, killing 11 persons.

National 4-H Club Week Observances Is Scheduled Next Week

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer
Experts tell us that no comparable period in history has seen greater and more significant changes than the past 25 years. We have seen man's conquest of the atom, which opened a new world of energy and power. We have seen man's conquest of space, which has even added new words to our vocabulary. We have seen man develop knowledge to conquer such age-old problems as hunger and diseases which have plagued him for centuries.

But along with new developments come broad social and economic problems of adjustment which bring new challenges. When the 4-H idea was first introduced, men of vision saw in the new program a way to help youth but also to introduce scientific research to skeptical adults. You are probably familiar with the stories of how those early-day educators gave boys improved varieties of seed corn and taught them improved cultivation practices, which finally resulted in many of those new practices being adopted by adults in their communities. The story is similar with girls, starting a little later, in growing and canning tomatoes. Results were much the same.

Today's philosophy of youth work has departed from the early belief that knowledge about subjects was the end to be achieved. Now emphasis is placed on how well the boy or girl learns to make decisions in light of the available research. 4-H can offer challenging learning experiences for members of all ages. Ownership and management of property, responsibility for upkeep, record-keeping, marketing, useful work experiences—all are or can be a part of 4-H. These experiences are useful in farming and homemaking—they can be useful also in helping youth to explore and establish themselves successfully in other kinds of careers.

Here in Hempstead County you can look around at the 4-H program and find an impressive and encouraging sight. There are 375 boys and girls in six clubs in our county. Those clubs are: Shover Springs, Victory, Fulton, Green Hill, McCaskill and Sprudell. Each member is involved in one or more projects for which he, and he alone, is responsible. Although members receive counsel and guidance from volunteer adult leaders, the value of the finished project is up to the individual.

Next week is National 4-H Week, an opportunity for all of us to take a better look at the fine work of these young people and to salute this outstanding informal educational program for its contribution to America today and tomorrow.

No Merger of Parties in Israel
TEL AVIV (AP) — The Rafi party of former Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion has broken off negotiations to merge with the ruling Mafal party of Ben-Gurion's bitter rival, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol.

The decision appeared to lessen Defense Minister Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan's chances of being elected prime minister next year. The hero of three Israeli wars with the Arabs, Dayan is both Ben-Gurion's old protégé and a member of Eshkol's Cabinet.

The consolidation plan would have brought Mafal and Rafi together with the left-wing Achdut Haavodot in a united labor front. The Rafi-Mafal talks failed after Ben-Gurion, 81, said Eshkol was untruthful and that his slowness in resettling Jews in the Old City of Jerusalem would hasten its return to the Arabs.

Housing Is Making Slow Recovery
By JOSEPH R. COYNE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The slow recovery of the housing industry from last year's recession is expected to continue through 1968, but there's no relief in sight for high interest rates on mortgages.

That's the assessment of the industry and key government officials if Congress approves higher taxes to help reduce a heavy budget deficit and stem inflationary pressures.

Without higher taxes, they said, housing could go into another tailspin.

No substantial easing of mortgage interest rates is anticipated through next year and the home building industry indicated a further slight increase this year would come as no surprise.

High interest rates will undoubtedly hold down the housing recovery this year and postpone the catching up process until 1968, the industry said.

In a new housing forecast, the National Association of Home Builders said housing starts this year are certain to exceed the depressed 1966 level but the improvements will be slight over-all.

For 1968, the association foresees a 10 per cent increase in housing starts if the administration's proposed 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes becomes effective on Jan. 1.

But the group expects no significant loosening in credit during the first quarter of next year and very likely throughout the year.

"Result, housing starts in 1968 will fall to increase as rapidly as in previous times of recovery after a tight money period," the report said.

Some government officials also foresee no substantial lowering of mortgage interest rates next year.

After reaching their peak last December, interest rates on home loans declined until late spring but have since increased.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which supervises the savings and loan industry, the largest single source of mortgage funds, said the average interest rate on conventional loans on new houses was 6.34 per cent during August, the same as July.

Cites Terror in Chinese Anniversary
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union marked the 18th anniversary Sunday of Communist power in China with sharp assertions today that chairman Mao Tse-tung has used his power to create bloody terror.

Mao's policy has led to "economic dislocation and stagnation, depressed living standards, chaos and terrorism throughout the country, and complete isolation internationally," Prof. Mikhail Kapitsa wrote in the weekly Moscow News.

"Bloody terror reigns and a regime of bureaucratic military dictatorship is being established," wrote a former Tass correspondent in China, Mikhail Yakovlev. His comment in the magazine Za Rubezhom—Abroad—comes in the context of the ideological split between the Soviet Union and China.

ABC Raids a Private Home and Jails Two
CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — A private home and the VFW Club were raided here Thursday by five Alcoholic Beverage Control agents and Faulkner County authorities, and two men were arrested.

Paul Terrell, who headed the raid, said Charles Reid, manager of the VFW club, and Ad Fulkerson, whose residence was raided, were arrested after officers purchased alcoholic beverages at both places.

Both men were charged with over possession of liquor and possession of liquor for sale, Terrell said.

Confiscated from the VFW club were 104 cases of beer and 32 bottles of liquor and lesser amounts at Fulkerson's residence, Terrell said.

16 Wounded As Mortars Shell Base

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON (AP) — The Communists opened up with mortars in the Mekong delta south of Saigon today, shelling the U.S. 9th Infantry Division headquarters—the main American base in the area—and four South Vietnamese camps.

Sixteen Americans were wounded in the attack, which followed intensified U.S. air strikes deep into North Vietnam. Air Force planes blasted the frequently hit MIG airfield at Hoa Lac west of Hanoi, and carrier-based Navy pilots flew through surface-to-air missile barrages to strike a bridge inside the port of Haiphong.

The shelling in the Mekong delta began Friday night on isolated government outposts near the cities of My Tho and Can Tho. Within minutes, help came from Air Force "Spookies"—old twin-engine C47s specially equipped to suppress night attacks by dropping flares and then opening up with quick-firing Gatling guns.

The attacks on the South Vietnamese posts continued sporadically during the night. Early this morning the Red gunners shifted to the big U.S. camp at Dong Tam, 42 miles southwest of Saigon.

The Spookies unloaded nearly 30,000 rounds on suspected Red mortar positions.

At the northern end of South Vietnam, North Vietnamese mortar teams fired about 100 shells on the district headquarters town of Hai Lang, about 25 miles below the demilitarized zone.

Communist infantrymen then tried to storm through wire barricades but were beaten back and lost 17 dead, military spokesmen said. South Vietnamese losses were called light.

To the northwest the U.S. Marine outpost of Con Thien was under fire. It has been every day this month but U.S. headquarters did not specify how many shells came in. It said only that about 128 Communist rounds fell on American positions below the DMZ. This could include four big posts and other lesser ones in the area. They are guarding possible Red invasion routes to the northern provinces.

Since the heavy shelling of Con Thien began early this month, U.S. headquarters has shown increasing sensitivity to casualty reports and has begun de-emphasizing the frontier artillery duels.

The air pounding of Communist gun positions along the DMZ continued without letup. B52 bombers rained some 300,000 pounds of bombs on Red positions above Con Thien before dawn and Air Force and Marine jets continued to hit suspected gunpits during the day.

The U.S. Command said one Marine Phantom jet was shot down near the DMZ Friday, the third jet lost this week in the area. The two fliers parachuted into the Tonkin Gulf and were rescued.

The U.S. Command did not specify what type gun brought down the Phantom, but an Air Force spokesman said the enemy now has radar-controlled anti-aircraft guns along the frontier. They are not considered capable of reaching the high-altitude B52s.

The air war over North Vietnam included 167 missions by Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots—an above average day permitted by slightly improved weather.

The Press Suspects; Government Resents; And It Is About Right

Gov. Smith thinks the press generally is suspicious of government and politics. The Governor is right. The press is suspicious of government and politics. The Governor thinks suspicion can be overcome. Again he is right. If the press is suspicious and nothing else, it is doing a poor job.

But in a hard choice (Too little or too much suspicion.) better too much than too little. Better that the press and the government view each other on opposite sides of an unbridgeable chasm, in an atmosphere of mutual distrust and wariness, than that they join hands and blend their voices in hymns of mutual praise and admiration.

In both there is a great deal to praise and admire. Government isn't all bad, and although all politicians are human, all politicians are not corrupt. The press isn't all good, and any pretensions in this respect should be discounted sharply. Both press and government draw their recruits from exactly the same pool in human kind, which is to say that the percentage of frailty, selfishness and downright stupidity is approximately the same in each. And it is for precisely this reason that in the institutional roles established for them in an open society they should confront each other across a moat, the one to propose, to perform and to take charge, the other to suspect, to challenge and to ask what-in-the-sam-hill is going on.

It is no accident that the Pulitzer prizes in journalism are never awarded for some editorial ode in praise of politicians. For such praise as they merit, they can look to other quarters. And it is no loss to the commonwealth that the press labors under the burden of resentment. If it sets much store in gratitude, it is in the wrong business. Government and press function best when they meet each other as friendly enemies—and more as enemies than as friends. — Charleston (W. Va.) Daily Mail

Complaint Department

Once, Betty Furness used to open refrigerator doors on television. Now, as consumer adviser to President Johnson, she opens stacks of mail. Mail full of complaints, she admitted to a Washington forum the other day.

She brought along to the meeting no actual samples. (She did cite the letter-writer who wanted her to guarantee that all artichokes have 15 leaves.) But we would be willing to make a bet on what a majority of the complaints are about. We know, because we know how we react.

We don't like unordered merchandise coming through the mails. We don't like mail-order firms, mostly clubs, that keep sending items after they've been told not to. We don't like computers that make billing mistakes (unless the mistakes are in our favor). We don't like blatantly phony come-ons, such as envelopes marked in red ink with "Important Message, Open at Once."

If Mrs. Furness can get all those objections finished off in a year we'll think she's doing a medal-worthy job. And we wish she would waste right in. Because when she has finished with those we will hand her a further and unabridged list of gripes. In short, if she will do the work, we'll guarantee her fulltime occupation — and without even descending to the question of artichoke leaves. — Huntsville (Ala.) Times

Capp to Visit Abner Site
HARRISON, Ark. (AP) — O.J. Snow of Harrison, president of Recreational Enterprises, Inc., said Thursday that Al Capp of New York City, creator of the comic strip "Li'l Abner," will attend the formal groundbreaking ceremonies of the multimillion dollar Dogpatch USA project here Tuesday.

Snow said Capp, who has become associated with the group of Harrison business men in forming Enterprises, Inc., to build his cartoon colony of Dogpatch, will be here for three days to discuss the development of the fantasy town.
